21/06/11. Banbury Innovations is expanding

In the past twelve months the Banbury group have created seven new jobs and improved their financial performance considerably, due to the launch of several new construction products that reduce construction time are durable and easy to handle. The Stone-Coat range of canopies, dormers, door and window surrounds, and profiles have attracted interest from UK architects, builders and specifiers alike and have provided Banbury with its first ever export order from Gibraltar. The company has decided to open a Southern division to cope with the increased number of sales enquiries it is now receiving. This is coupled with the launch of a new web site www.banburyinnovationsouth.co.uk

John Banbury Chairman of Banbury Innovations said "like many of our colleagues in the construction sector the last few years have been tough but we have focused on innovation I am very pleased with the progress we are making. We have created several new jobs in the factory, hired additional sales people and we are looking to continue that trend".

Background

The Banbury Group was established in 1990 and is well known within the construction industry for the introduction of new innovative products. The group comprises of five companies, three specialist suppliers of construction materials to Architects, House Builders and Merchants and two companies which manufacture construction materials. The new products that have recently been introduced will significantly reduce construction time, they are easier to handle carbon friendly and need less maintenance. The group has developed a strong supply chain. Coupled with the group's experience of supplying traditional products they can now offer a wider range of modern construction solutions.
